Hi Jimmy,

We will look into this and get back to you. This is all the more reason we need a definitive decision on meter replacement so we can replace our defective stock.....hint...hint We are moving ahead on the RFP and our plan to get the City back on track. Anyway, sorry we were unable to discuss this yesterday. See you tomorrow at the GM meeting. Take care, rita

Rita,

I hate to bother you with this, but hoping you can forward this along to the right person.

I wouldn't normally come to you with something like this - but I was a witness to it firsthand.

I met my friend for coffee last Wednesday morning. After I found a spot in my car I waited for him as there was only one spot available on the street and he parked his car there. The meter was broken and said "fail" on it. He would have gladly paid the few quarters for this meter or moved to another spot, but neither was an option at the time.

About a half hour after parking there he came out to the car to get some paperwork and saw that he was getting a ticket. Apparently, in the short time that we were there, the meter was fixed and he was given a ticket (don't know if the same people that fix the meters also write the tickets).

I can assure you that the meter was in fact broken and he was not trying to avoid paying 50 cents to park. Normally I would just have him pay the ticket - especially with our city's fiscal climate, but he is not in a position to do so at this time.
